Campaign For Ski Jump To Continue For Second Week

College Trustees To Donate Money Equalling Sum Students Raise

FOUNDATION BEGUN ON CHIPMAN TOWER

Six Hundred Dollars Must Be Secured to Assure Completion

The intensive drive to raise the funds necessary to complete construction of the Chipman hill ski jump will be continued this week. The campaign, which was inaugurated last Wednesday, is being extended due to insufficient returns from last week's drive.

The sum needed for the completion of the tower is six hundred dollars, which is the goal set for the campaign. According to an announcement by President Paul D. Moody, for every dollar contributed by the student body an additional donation of one dollar will be made by the trustees of the college, until the six hundred dollar mark has been reached. The mountain club and winter sports team are directing the campaign, and tags representing a contribution of fifty cents are being sold by members of these organizations.

Work on the foundation for the tower was started Monday and should be completed within the week. If sufficient funds are raised by this drive, the construction of the tower itself will begin next Monday. The success of the winter carnival will depend on the completion of the jump, which can be made possible only by the cooperation of the student body this week.

The tower, when completed, will have a 75 foot drop and a 140 foot runway, allowing an average jump of 120 feet. It is to be built of lumber on concrete piers and if the project goes through, will be one of the best in the East.

Berea Linens Are On Display Today

Pottery and Handwork From Kentucky Mountains Will Be Sold in Pearsons Hall

Linen work and pottery from Berea, a town in the Kentucky mountains, is being exhibited in the Abernethy wing of the library today from 2 to 6 and 7 to 9 p. m. by the courtesy of Dr. Viola C. White, curator. The social committee of the Women's college is sponsoring the exhibition.

A sale of these articles will be held in Pearsons social hall to-morrow afternoon from 2 to 6. Nothing is to be sold or reserved for sale today.

The linens and cottons are all woven on hand looms by the mountain people of Berea. They use pure vegetable dyes from the indigo, beet, and certain roots with which they prepare the threads before weaving. A wealth of legendary designs from old ballads and mountain lore is then incorporated as the piece is woven.

The weaving and pottery making is an occupation of long standing in the region, but had become almost extinct until revived by Mrs. F. A. Matheny who takes charge of the exhibiting and selling of the products. As the wife of an educator in Berea college, she became interested in the people and in an endeavor to lessen their poverty went to New York and studied weaving herself.

Phi Beta Kappa to Initiate New Members Thursday

Phi Beta Kappa, national honorary society, will initiate new members Thursday morning during the chapel service. The annual banquet for all residents and new members will be held at 7 p. m. at the inn.

Prof. Harry M. Fife of the economics department will be the guest speaker that evening. He will discuss various phases of his trip abroad last year.

The newly-elected Phi Beta Kappa members of the senior class are: Benjamin M. Hayward, Joseph H. Jackson, Faith Arnold, Grace S. Bates, Dorothy M. Crowe, Dorothea de Chiara, Virginia E. Easler, Alice E. Flagg, Elizabeth W. Higgins, Helen L. Lindberg, and Doris P. Tucker. Their election to the honorary society was announced in chapel November 17.

An average of eighty-nine per cent for the first six semesters of one's college course or eighty-seven and a half for eight semesters is necessary for admission to the national scholastic fraternity.

Puppet Play To Be Shown Wednesday

Tony Sarg Will Offer "Faust The Wicked Magician" in Gymnasium December 12

The Tony Sarg company of New York will present "Faust the Wicked Magician" in McCullough gymnasium, Wednesday, December 12. The play is in three acts and nine scenes, especially adapted for the marionettes by Tony Sarg in collaboration with Stas Azoy.

This story of Faust is a revival of the medieval fantastic story which was the first marionette play to be given, other than the religious Mary-nettes given at Christmas time.

The opening scene is laid in the study of Faust. The learned physician receives a number of patients who have heard of his cures and they all seem to expect miracles. The manner in which he accomplished the unusual is enough to stamp the doctor as a wicked magician. Aside from Casper, most of the characters are recognized from the Faust stories and the opera. The climax of the scene is reached when Mephistopheles shows Faust the vision of Marguerite, accompanied by the signing of the compact whereby Faust sells his soul to the devil and is made young again.

Costumes and scenic effects were designed for this play by Tony Sarg, under whose personal supervision the drama is produced. Some of the scenes take place in Marguerite's gardens, a canal bridge in Venice, Dr. Faust's lodgings, and the witches' kitchen in Germany.

Mr. Sarg has made a life study of puppet making. His career as a creator

Alfred Kelsey to Talk on Mount Athos Monastery

Mr. Alfred C. Kelsey will give a lecture in the fine arts room of the library Tuesday, at 1:30 p. m. The subject of his talk will be the Monastery of Mount Athos.

Mount Athos is considered one of the most interesting spots of the Mediterranean world. Since the founding of the monastery hundreds of years ago, no woman has been allowed on the island where Athos is situated. The monastery posseses the most complete library of documents pertaining to early Christianity in existence. The bible for which the British museum recently paid 500,000 dollars was stolen from there and sold to the Czar of Russia, passing from his possession to the hands of the Bolsheviks, who sold the book to the British government.

Mr. Kelsey is a distinguished American architect, and his best known work is the Pan-American building in Washington.

Essay Award Won By Mary Ballard

Other Saxonian Prizes Are Given to Elizabeth Trask And Mariette R. Bowles

Mary G. Ballard '35 won the first prize of twenty-five dollars in the annual Saxonian essay contest recently conducted by the board. "The Golden Age of America" is the title of the prize-winning contribution.

The second prize of fifteen dollars was won by Elizabeth Trask '36 with her essay on "Knitting", and the ten dollar third prize was awarded to Mariette R. Bowles '35 for her essay on "The Shakers". Hyatt Waggoner '35 received honorable mention for his composition titled "From Pleiad Lookout".

Miss Ballard's "The Golden Age of America" relates the history of clipper ships from the war of 1812, when American seamen first gained the freedom of the waves, up to the civil war, which marked the introduction of automatically propelled boats and the close of the golden era. Miss Trask's essay on "Knitting" is a humorous satire on the results, good and bad, of the knitting craze in relation to college life and college students. "The Shakers" by Miss Bowles presents a short history of the development of this group, their purpose, and their unusual manner of living. The composition by Waggoner describes the view from Pleiad lookout and its bearing on the author's philosophy of life.

The prize-winning essays will be featured in the next issue of the Saxonian, which will be published soon. President Paul D. Moody, Prof. H. Goddard Owen, and Miss Rose E. Martin were the judges of the contest.

A short story and a poetry contest will be held later in the year, with the same prizes offered to the winners.

Professor Burrage Will Give Abernethy Reading

Prof. William S. Burrage will read Kennedy's "Servant in the House" at 4 o'clock Friday afternoon in the Abernethy room of the library.

Charles Rann Kennedy, born in 1871, has had thirty-seven years experience with drama, as actor, producer, and playwright. His first appearance on the stage was in 1897 and his New York debut came in 1903. He and his wife have appeared in several of his own plays. At present he is with the Bennett School in Millbrook, N. Y., for which he designed a little theater and a Greek amphitheater. "Servant in the House" has been chosen as particularly appropriate for the Christmas season.

Last week, Prof. Llewellyn R. Perkins read several Thanksgiving stories written by Rowland E. Robinson. Professor Perkins is editing a centennial edition of Robinson's works which has stimulated a revived interest in the Vermont author.

First Program Of Concert Series To Be Given Tonight

Malcolm and Godden to Play In Middlebury Church This Evening

RECITAL FEATURES USE OF TWO PIANOS

Selections Include Brahms, Bach, Prokofieff, and Rachmaninoff

Reginald Godden and Scott Malcolm, pianists, will give a recital at 8:15 this evening in the Congregational church, presenting the first Middlebury community concert of the seaosn.

Using two Steinway pianos especially secured for the occasion, the musicians will offer a classical program, including several numbers of their own transcription.

When they met at Toronto in 1923, Mr. Godden and Mr. Malcolm began playing duets for their own amusement and not in a professional sense, but they later found that their individual abilities fitted them for a joint career. To this end they began practicing and in the following year offered a program at the Toronto conservatory concert hall.

Since then, in a comparatively short time, these artists have won recognition as duo-recitalists. Their transcriptions, especially those from the organ works of Bach, have increased the repertoire for two pianos, thus overcoming a previous weakness in the field.

The selections which will be played this evening include the Bach transcriptions, as well as special arrangements of Brahms' "Cradle Song", Prokofieff's "March", and de Falla's "Ritual Fire Dance". Four Rachmaninoff numbers will also be heard.

Hardanger, a modern composition which is to be given, is the work of Arnold Bax, contemporary English

Women To Debate Keene Team Here

Shipment of Armaments and Munitions to Be Opposed By Middlebury Speakers

The women's debating team will meet representatives from Keene normal school in a non-decision contest in Old Chapel Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock. Edith K. DuBois '38, Jeanette L. Leavens '38, and Annette C. Tuthill '38 will be the speakers for Middlebury.

The question for discussion is: resolved, that the nations should agree to prevent the international shipment of arms and munitions. Middlebury will uphold the negative.

Monday a team composed of Eleanor R. Cobb '36, Barbara T. Wishart '36, and Elizabeth B. Knox '37, will leave for a trip to Rhode Island to debate with Pembroke and Rhode Island State college.

In both these contests the question to be considered will be the same as that in the debate Friday, Middlebury will up hold the affirmative in the discussion with Pembroke, and the negative in the Rhode Island State contest.

The schedule for the year also includes encounters with New York State Teachers' college, New Hampshire university, College of William and Mary, University of Vermont, and, a New York trip.

AN EDUCATIONAL OPPORTUNITY

This evening will mark the opening of the Wesleyan parley on political philosophies. The conference, which will be held at the university in Middletown, Connecticut, will be attended by a number of interested Middlebury people, both from the faculty and from the undergraduate body. Representatives from practically all the Eastern colleges and universities will meet at this parley to hear qualified speakers present the doctrines of the various leading political creeds and to join in round-table discussions.

The plans of the conference include such speakers as Norman Thomas, leading American socialist, Hamilton Fish Jr., U. S. representative from New York and prominent conservative, Max Eastman, radical intellectual, John Dickinson, Assistant Secretary of Commerce, V. F. Calverton, editor of the "Modern Monthly", Dr. Harry W. Laidler, economist of the League for Industrial Democracy, Scott Nearing, author, Col. Henry Breckenridge, former Assistant Secretary of war, and others of equal prominence. From these speakers the assembled collegians and educators will have the opportunity of hearing "rugged individualism", New Deal democracy, socialism, communism, and fascism presented by men who really know what they mean and stand for.

To us the Wesleyan parley is an ideal example of enlightened education. If only half of the potential value of the conference is realized, it will be worth a dozen classroom courses in politics, government, and economics. The material presented will all be "first hand"; students will be able to hear each political philosophy given without the distortion, misquotation, and misrepresentation that usually accompanies the interprepation of each belief. Students will be able to interpret each philosophy for themselves, and will then have the chance to meet in discussion with fresh minds from other schools. The conference should be extremely valuable.

The ultimate success of the conference depends, of course, on the attitude of mind with which the participating students attend. If they are to derive any benefit from the speeches and discussions, they must maintain unbiased and unprejudiced attitudes. Otherwise the affair will be a waste of time.

When we speak of the success of the parley, we do not mean that we dare to hope for a unanimous agreement on the part of those present as to which philosophy is the soundest, the most desirable, and the most practical. A successful parley will send the students back to their colleges with clarified conceptions of the various creeds, conceptions built upon knowledge. And from these enlightened conceptions should result individuals capable of exerting useful force on the government of the America of future years.

AN A. C. E. PEACE POLL

The Association of College Editors, organized last September with the editor of the CAMPUS as one of the thirty-odd charter members, will conduct a peace poll early in January in conjunction with the "Literary Digest".

Peace polls are by no means a new thing, of course, and there may be some cynicism regarding their value. The A. C. E. poll, however, is designed to help stabilize world peace by keeping interest and thought alive. The questions included are somewhat more comprehensive than those which made up the Brown University Daily Herald questionnaire that was answered by Middlebury undergraduates last year, and they will be of importance in giving an accurate survey of college opinion on peace problems. In the next issue of the CAMPUS the complete questions will be published. It is not too early to start considering the entire question now.

What's New

—By C. and D.

Here today and gone tomorrow . . . . that's life for you. This was such a delightful column. We admit our shortcomings are numerous but so far we have stuck close by Midd except for certain pleasant vacations taken at the usual times.

". . . . . and what if thou withdraw in silence from the living, and no friend take note of thy departure? All that breathe will share thy destiny. . . . ."

To understand this completely one has but to talk to the brilliant resident of Homestead that succeeded in plugging up the only entrance or exit to some squirrelish love-nest. Squirrels come, and squirrels go, but we know one that's gonna be there a long time. That in itself is the source of an awful stench around this worthy institution. It seems too bad that things like that must happen. It's such a nuisance calling all of the trustees together over unpleasant trifles like that. Mum's the word, girls. Don't be too incensed by it all.

The soph hop committee needn't think we went to their old brawl just because of all the notices that they had read in chapel last Wednesday. Forthwith let it be known we merely went to work up an appetite for that Thanksgiving dinner we wanted so much last summer, when we were up at Quinniemegunk lake with nothing but some mouldy bacon and a short charge of ancient flour.

We like Pete D'Amico's crooning convict, but we will always be in doubt about la fille with the bass voice. What got us was those sad, sad, soulful eyes. Perhaps there is something in this song "Rain". If Pete hadn't shoved it in our faces all night perhaps things would have been different. "It rained for forty days and it rained for forty nights, then Noah called for a bird." If we had a bird we'd give it to Pete. The world is full of ill omens, but that song was just a slam in the face of fate.

And then there was the little girl at the tea dance who thought that "Ski Heil" was the place that the dead ski jumpers went to. We laughed and laughed and laughed, because we knew all the time that "Ski Heil" was the Swiss national heckle.

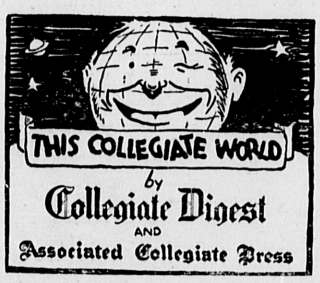
With all this dancing at the Inn and the free-for-all last Saturday night in the Gym we are fast losing what little manners we had. When you turn around for the seventeenth time, after bumping into someone, you are not so free with that apology when you discover that it is a white post or the right wing of the male stag line.

We believe that nothing can look more dumbfounded than a frosh co-ed cut loose for the first time in the middle of our huge gymnasium. That's all right, little girl, just shut your eyes and swing. That's fun. If you haven't cut in on somebody you're not in our little athletic citadel. Yes sir, by gad, two full-sized volleyball courts.

We have entered many rooms and seen many serious conflicts, but nothing ever stirred our souls more than the sight of eleven rugged men knee deep in playing cards. Scaling them through the air at each other with the battle lust in their eyes they fought on into the night. We watched and wondered and later we understood. We saw them as they ate, hurling gobs of butter at each other, and we understood that they had dedicated their lives to throwing it.

In the years that are to come there will always be a place for the dear thing that blurted out, "Is it a real thermometer that tells how hot it is?" Just be patient, Gracie Allen can't last forever.

Rotten shale, rusty ironwork, second-story stuff; it's all the same to us. It's not how you get there, it's where you get. We weren't bothered, only worried. Remember the old saying, "Some people can take it, some people can't." How about you, Lady Fizzlemits, are you a sissy?



Scientist Einstein would have no examinations in his ideal university, no drilling of the memory. "It would be mainly a process of appeal to the senses in order to draw out delicate reactions," he says.

Christopher Morley, too, has a sneaking suspicion, and says as much to students, that so-called "extra curricular activities" could be nicely fired out the window.

Morley gave a smothered yelp of delight at a luncheon at the University of Minnesota the other day when a professor described the difference between a university and an insane asylum. "You have to show improvement to get out of the asylum," said the professor.

For heaven's sake—

At the University of Alabama a girl has just enrolled in a boxing course.

At Northwestern University, the men have just organized a knitting course.

It sort of looks as though the political science professors may as well fold up their tents. Their varied theories of values in politics do not seem to apply to student politics. At the University of Missouri student election, 200 more votes were cast than there are students. Like occurences are reported at Ohio state and at Michigan.

Then at Northwestern univeristy, sorority girls decided to stuff a ballot box. They selected a list of names out of the student address book, and used them. It was very sad: some of the names they picked belonged to some of the election judges.

One eminent professor at the University of Washington was slowly fraying nerve ends over the habit that co-eds in his class had of continually powdering and rouging during his lectures. So, one day, he got into a huddle with a male student in the front row. Next day this man came in, sat down, pulled out a razor and shaving mug and slowly proceeded to lather up before the constricted audience.

Some amazing finds have come out of the six-year study of educational methods made by the Carnegie foundation.

The student who ranked at the top of the whole list of 2,800 examined had flunked steadily in college, whereas a girl about to receive a magna cum laude failed miserably in the foundation test, standing fifth from the bottom in her state.

The lowest group of students was found in the schools of business administration, although men and women studying to be teachers barely pulled themselves above the ground floor.

After four years, seniors were shown to have improved slightly in general intelligence, but seemed to have lost ground over their high school days in spelling, grammar, literature and history.

Why theologians throw up their hands:

Answers to queries at the University of Minnesota showed that no one student in a class of 160 had any doubts about the truth of evolution and that only 20 per cent of another large class admitted they had ever heard of Pontius Pilate.

The funeral service whch stands out strongest in the memory of a certain class at the University of Kansas was one conducted for an eccentric, but beloved old professor. At the height of his oratory, the minister said: "The shell has broken and the nut is gone."

Alumni Activities

At a meeting held November 17 the alumni council voted to endorse the report of the committee on the alumni fund to the effect that the chief project of the fund for 1934-35, in addition to covering the usual running expenses for the work of the association, would be the securing of contributions toward the construction of an indoor field or "cage" as the first unit in the proposed athletic building of the college.

Prof. Arthur M. Brown, director of athletics, and Mr. Edgar J. Wiley, secretary of the alumni council, returned last Wednesday from a visit to several of the New England colleges where they secured data on the equipment elsewhere for use in the work of the alumni fund committee.

Coach Brown Gives Report

Professor Brown reported at the meeting for the committee on commencement features, in the absence of Dr. Stewart Ross '20, chairman. The committee plans to omit the usual intercollegiate baseball game on the Saturday of the commencement week-end and inaugurate in its place a game of playground ball of not over five innings with competition between the odd and even year classes and with a scoring system and a cup offered by Dr. Ross to the winning side. The plans were discussed in some detail and a large score board was suggested by Sam Davis '21, as an added feature of interest for the occasion. The general idea was to arrange a plan which would involve the active participation of a large number of alumni as an informal and enjoyable part of the commencement program. The council voted to approve the plan with the understanding that the details would be further worked out by Dr. Ross and Coach Brown, with the assistance of the "M" club.

New York Trip Is Made By Students

Prof. Russell G. Sholes and Sociology Class Visit City To Investigate Conditions

Fifty-one students went on the sociology study trip to New York city November 24 to 27. The trip was conducted by Prof. Russell G. Sholes of the sociology department.

The group first visited the church and homes of a Syrian community and ate at a Syrian restaurant. Later some of the students went aboard a Swedish-American cruise liner as it was about to sail.

A large group attended service in an Abyssinian Baptist church in Harlem Sunday morning. In the afternoon a Buddhist Temple opened its service to them and a lecture on India was heard.

Monday the court of domestic relations with former Mayor Hylan on the bench admitted the students to a one hour session during which the purpose and workings of the court were explained to them. Lunch was taken at MacFadden one cent restaurant. The rest of the day was spent at the Clinical Research bureau and in a visit to Knickerbocker village and outlawed tenements.

After dining at Little Hof Brau house Monday evening the group left New York and returned to Middlebury.

Mortar Board Presents Revival Movies Tuesday

Mortar Board presented the revival movies, "Orchids and Ermine", starring Colleen Moore, and "The Adventurer", featuring Charlie Chaplin, Tuesday night at the playhouse.

The first picture showed Colleen Moore in the role of a telephone operator at the Ritz. Until the arrival of Jack Mulhall, a wealthy young oil man, her attitude toward the class he represented was one of complete cynicism.

In "'The Adventurer" Charlie Chaplin, an escaped convict, posed as a millionaire in a young lady's house after rescuing her from a watery grave.

Mrs. E. J. Wiley played the piano throughout the performance as an accompaniment to the silent pictures. Pop-corn and fudge were sold between the reels.

CONCERT REVIEW

Mr. Hathaway and Vincent Sargent skillfully combined technical ability and musical understanding in interpretation of works of Clementi, Bach, Schubert, Schumann, and other great composers, at the studio recital, November 27.

Particularly well-adapted to two-piano playing was "Jesus Joy of Man's Desiring" by Bach, in which each piano carried a few strands of the counterpoint, alternately bringing out a beautiful melody and then subsiding into contrapuntal accompaniment. Brilliance of execution was evident in the sparkling "Feu Roulant" by Duvemoy. As a contrast came the more tuneful, charmingly rhythmic waltze of Brahms.

In keeping with a program largely German, Miss Prudence Fish's solos were by Germany's two greatest lyricists, Schubert and Franz, and one by Richard Strauss. She sang both in English and in German with splendid clarity of diction.

Christian Marriage Is Vespers Theme

Rev. Malcolm Taylor Talks On Material and Spiritual Relation of Marital Union

The Rev. Malcolm Taylor of Boston spoke at vespers Sunday, basing his talk on marriage seen as the light of the Christian ideal.

The speaker commenced by stating that the appeal that causes two people to fall in love, is made up of two parts, physical appeal and intellectual appeal, the latter giving a finer meaning to the former. Thus marriage becomes a sacrement, a material means through which the spiritual finds expression.

Continuing, he remarked that this appeal increases as time passes, that it grows into something deeper and finer. "This increase is brought about," he said, "by a desire for companionship, so necessary in making life richer; by a desire for home, the one tiny place situated in this immense universe, that we can call our own; and by the desire for children, whose young lives we can mould into that which we ourselves have longed to be."

"Falling in love," the Rev. Mr. Taylor went on, "is not only in the sphere of religion, but is the very center of religion." He cited the point that the God who touches us through nature, can a thousand times more easily reach us through the human quality, love, When love is raised to its highest power, personality is sacrificed, showing a true revelation of God.

"Marriage" he stated, "brings out the real character of a man or woman and displays his weaknesses. When the divorce courts are sought, it is not marriage that has failed, but the people." The speaker then remarked that a common conception of marriage is a man and woman's finding happiness and satisfaction in relationship. However, he declared that the Christian idea was that two people face the world together in searching for an ideal, and go hand-in-hand toward something higher. Happiness comes when they have an ideal beyond themselves.

In conclusion, he asserted that the home is the place in which the symbols of the Christian ideal, unending faith, love in its most unselfish form, and sacrifice, are revealed as attributes of mind, soul and spirit.

yes, and here's why—

We know that smoking a pipe is different from smoking a cigar or cigarette . . . and in trying to find the tobacco best suited for pipes . . .

We found out that the best tobacco for use in a pipe grows down in the Blue Grass Section of Kentucky, and it is called White Burley.

There is a certain kind of this tobacco that is between the tobacco used for cigarettes and the kind that is used for chewing tobacco.

This is the kind of tobacco that we use, year after year, for Granger Rough Cut.

We got the right pipe tobacco, made it by the right process . . . Wellman's Process . . . we cut it right . . . rough cut.

Another football season has lost itself in the haze of history, and the usual post-mortems in the form of "all" teams are keeping football in the minds of the fanatics. In full accord with its custom of past years, the CAMPUS offers its all-G. M. C. eleven. In other years the CAMPUS selections have been based closely upon a consensus arrived at through the teams chosen by the coaches of the conference elevens. This year the CAMPUS has attempted to compile a consensus, but due to the fact that Coach Laird of Norwich did not pick a team and Coach Sabo of Vermont restricted his selections to merely offering the names of the men on his own squad who seem to him to be of all-state calibre, the CAMPUS will of necessity use the coaches' choices as mere references.

Good Material Is Plentiful

As a whole the material in the three colleges which comprised the conference this year has been of fine quality. Outstanding men like Boehm, Hicks, Zawistoski, and Negus have made certain positions easy to fill. On the other hand, certain positions saw two or more men of almost equally fine ability, with a choice very difficult to arrive at.

Middlebury, co-holders of this year's state title with Vermont, placed six men on the first team and five on the second, Vermont had three on the first team and three on the second, while Norwich had two on the first eleven and four on the second.

The general consensus of opinion was divided on some positions, but Boehm of Middlebury, Negus of Vermont, Cook of Vermont, Forbush of Middlebury, Hoxie of Middlebury, and Zawistoski of Middlebury seemed to meet with unanimous approval as being the outstanding players in their respective positions.

The Ends

Two left ends, Negus of Vermont and Forbush of Middlebury were easily the cream of the end crop. Negus, strong and aggressive, was of particular brilliance defensively, could block powerfully and was continually dangerous as a pass receiver. An injury sustained early in the season dimmed his lustre in early games, but his great performance in the Middlebury game made his selection imperative.

Forbush gained notice principally through his ability to pull down passes, but his all-around excellence, characterized by alert defensive play, and reliable blocking stamped him as Negus' equal at least. Giardi of the Green and Gold was a fine end, but the line separating him and Evans from Taylor of Norwich and Sweet of Middlebury was difficult to draw.

The Tackles

Captain Cook of Vermont and MacLean were easily the best tackles in the state. Cook, in addition to being a spectacular although unorthodox player in the line, did some fine punting throughout the year, and was almost alone responsible for keeping Vermont in a tie with the Panther by virtue of his kicking. MacLean was the most reliable tackle of all, being equally efficient at blocking and stopping plays. His play did not have the brilliance of Cook's, but he was continually one of the outstanding men on the field in every game.

Lombardi of Norwich, Stafford of Middlebury, and Ross of Vermont were of almost equal merit, and all were good, strong tackles.

The Guards

Leading Middlebury's interference on running plays, breaking through to nail punters and passers, and filling up his hole with power and resourcefulness, Hoxie of the Panthers outshone the guards of the state. Norwich's Smith, small but efficient, seems to be second to Hoxie. Whitney of the Blue and White was reliable throughout the year, and did himself proud against Vermont, but he was not quite as resourceful as Smith.

The Centers

Shafiroff of Middlebury, big, strong, and aggressive, led the pivot men, with Menendez of Norwich close behind. Both were powerful bulwarks in their respective lines, and both excelled in divining plays. Shafiroff's occasional lapses in snapping-back were offset by his fine charge and his bone-crunching tackling.

The Quarterbacks

Two brilliant performers led the signal-callers, Hicks of Norwich and Williams of Middlebury, with the difference between the two a difficult one to decide upon. Both were fine passers, with Hicks having the edge this season. Williams was the outstanding punter of the conference, and called signals with splendid judgement. Hicks, however, seems to hold a slight edge with no weakness in his play, and his genius at throwing forwards. He did run, block kick, pass, and lead his team with brilliance.

The Halfbacks

Boehm of Middlebury, a truly great ball-carrier, was the leading star of the conference. In addition to being a shifty, fast, and strong runner, his value to his team was enhanced by fine blocking, sound tackling, and a magnificent team spirit. Kenworthy, although a fullback, has been placed at halfback because he seems superior to all the halfbacks except Boehm, although he is not quite the great football player that Zawistoski is. Kenworthy is powerful, fast, alert, and is of equal strength defensively and offensively.

The Fullbacks

As fine a plunger as has ever played for Middlebury, Zawistoski stands out as fullback. A hard-driving ball carrier, an intelligent and relentless defensive man backing up a line, he also excels at blocking. Only Kenworthy approaches him in all-around play.

Coach Beck Makes Selection

Coach Beck of the Panther forces has made his selection for an all-conference first team. The Blue and White coach picked five men as exceptionally outstanding during this year's competition between Vermont state college teams. He has named Shafiroff (M), Hoxie (M), Cook (V), Boehm (M), and Zawistoski (M) as the five players deserving this credit. His selection of a first team is as follows, indicating by names in parentheses a question of doubt:

	(Whitney)	(M)
Center	Shafiroff	(M)
Right guard	Hoxie	(M)
Right end	Taylor	(N)
	(Giardi)	(V)
Quarterback	Williams	(M)
Right half	Golembeske	(M)
Fullback	Zawistoski	(M)

Coach Nelson Picks Teams

Coach Nelson, freshman football director, has selected for the CAMPUS a first and second ALL-STAR team, basing his selections from the angle of a Middlebury scouter. The writer wishes it to be noted that his selections are ALL-STAR teams and that the selections have not been determined by ability as shown in conference games only, but that the men have been chosen and placed for ability irrespective of exact playing positions on their respective teams. Coach Nelson bases his choices of players on ALL-STAR teams as the result of viewing the following games: Vermont vs. R. P. I., Vermont vs. Trinity, Vermont vs. Middlebury, Norwich vs. St. Anselm's.

First Team

Coach Beck's ALL-MIDD Team

Looking back to the heroes of the gridiron in years past, Coach Beck, who has for several years moulded Middlebury elevens, has selected for the CAMPUS an ALL-MIDD mythical football team. No man has been considered who has not finished his football career. The members of his team have all been chosen from elevens which represented the Blue and White during the seasons of '28-'34.

FLASHES

by "Stooge"

Volleyball is becoming popular at Middlebury it seems. Several males evidently did not have enough in the intramural tourney so joined up with the women in a rather informal game the other afternoon. Believe it or not the men won and the women still would like to play again.

Middlebury is not the only educational institution that believes in ringing bells when her football team brings home the bacon. It is reported that the old Japanese gong in the tower at Annapolis took quite a beating last week when the sailors boys returned to town. It was the first time in thirteen long years that the gong had sounded—that is what a Navy victory over the Army calls for.

Among that long list of some two hundred names that appeared as the leading scorers in the East, we find the name of Wally Boehm. The Blue and White star was in twenty-first position, next in line after Barabas, who figures so prominently in the great East-West encounter in the Rose Bowl last New Year.

Vermont seems to be all pepped up after gaining a tie with the Panther this year. Possibly that is not the reason, but at any rate the Catamounts are going to play Dartmouth and Army next year. They certainly are optimistic after what happened five years ago. It will be remembered that the Lakesiders met N. Y. U. and were trounced 77-0, and during the same season took a shot at Yale, again being disgraced by a 89-0 defeat. The last time that Vermont encountered Army was in 1903. The result was a 20-0 win for the Mule. At least they have courage, if not judgement.

A rather interesting fight took place in Peru some days ago. The heavyweight champ of Chile was throwing fists with the like title holder in Peru. The bout resulted in a decision for the Chili fighter. Not liking the way the referee made the decision, the defeated one stepped up to the official and without much ceremony promptly socked him on the chin for a beautiful knockout. That one punch landed said offender in jail.

Varsity Hoopsters To Open Court Season Friday With McGill Five

INTRAMURAL SPORTS

SUMMARY

With the completion of the first two weeks of the intramural basketball tournament, the Delta Kappa Epsilon, Kappa Delta Rho, and Chi Psi teams remain undefeated.

The Deke aggregation has three victories to its credit. The KDR and CP hoopsters have won two and one contests respectively. Delta Upsilon and Sigma Phi Epsilon players, each having come out on top in one of their two encounters, are tied with a .500 average. Alpha Sigma Phi, Beta Kappa, and Neutrals have still to register their first victory.

The standing is as follows:

TEAM	W	L
DKE	3	0
KDR	2	0
CP	1	0
DU	1	1
SPE	1	1
Neutrals	0	1
ASP	0	2
BK	0	2

DKE 21 - DU 19

Friday evening in a fast, tense, viciously fought battle, Delta Kappa Epsilon managed to eke out a narrow, but well-earned victory over the DU quintet, featuring a spectacular scoring streak by Lins.

By a tight, alert, man-to-man defense the DU hoopsters managed to keeps Lins and the rest of the Deke team comparatively well bottled up during the first period, also running up a 15-13 lead at the half.

However, a couple of minutes after the third quarter had commenced, Lins, throwing the ball from a struggling melee of players, made a perfect basket to tie the score. Immediately after the next center jump Lins again made a basket, this time with a beautiful, one-handed shot over the back of his head. Two more baskets by Lins, one a long shot and the other a one-hander, brought a 21 point score to a 6-point lead for the DKE aggregation.

The DU players now again found their "scoring eyes", and in a last quarter rally that brought their score up to 19 points. However, the final whistle blew as they were trying a series of frantic long shots in an attempt to knot the score.

Besides Lins, who scored all but four of the victors' points, Lonergan, with his incessant fight, was outstanding for DKE. Holmes, who ran up a total of eleven points, was the most successful DU player.

SPE 27 - ASP 24

Alpha Sigma Phi went down in defeat Saturday afternoon by a 27-24 score before a Sigma Phi Epsilon team that succeeded in maintaining a small lead of six points.

At the half SPE had a substantial lead of 6 points. Cook, the tall Sig Ep center, and Dorgan, a specialist in running hook shots, had brought a score of fourteen points for their team at this point. The Alpha Sigs had amassed a total of eight points, the scoring honors being well divided.

During the last part of the game, however ASP put on a scoring spree that brought them to within 3 points of the victors as the final whistle sounded.

Cook and Dorgan with eight points apiece, were the stars for the Sig Eps. Bona, who rang up 6 points during the second half, was high scorer for the Alpha Sigs.

KDR 38 - BK 20

By conquering the Beta Kappa quintet with a 38-20 score Saturday afternoon, Kappa Delta Rho won its second straight victory in the intramural basketball tourney.

At no time was the supremacy of the KDR hoopsters threatened. In the first half the score remained rather close, chiefly due to the winners' inability to sink close-up shots. However, in the second half, with Anderson, center, consistently getting the jump, and shots dropping better, the KDR team quickly piled up a huge lead.

With football enthusiasm fading into the annals of the past, thoughts turn to the opening encounter of the coming hoop schedule. The Panther quintet will get underway in its season opener Friday night when the Blue and White will match shots with a McGill university five on the McCullough court.

Little reliable information is on hand at the present time to indicate the potentialities of the visiting Canadian team. As in past years, the McGill quintet will probably be composed of American students doing graduate work in Canada, who are eligible to enter intercollegiate competition under the rules of our neighbor country. Although this will be the first time in several years that Middlebury has encountered them, the Canadian hoopsters have for some time been on the schedule of our rivals, the University of Vermont. Last year the Montreal team lost to the Catamounts after a closely contested encounter, and appeared on the current schedule of the Lakesiders again this year.

Middlebury seems to be well primed for the opening tilt. With a complete veteran team back in the lineup (the same five that crashed through to capture the G. M. C. title last season) Coach Beck charges bid fair to bring home the bacon Friday night. A probable lineup will see Captain Clonan matching jumps at center, backed at defense by Sweet, last year's captain, and Martin at the other guard post. In all probability the scoring positions will be filled by Leete and Hoehn, the same scoring duo that teamed up so well in past contests. In reserve Coach Beck will have Zawistoski, Benson, and F. Clonan who have been showing up well in practice sessions.

Exhibition of Etchings to Be Shown in Abernethy Room of Library This Week

An exhibition of etchings comprising several fine examples of the old masters will be shown in the art room of the library from December 7 to 12. It is being loaned through the courtesy of the Knoedler galleries.

The etching of Charles Meryon entitled "La Pour de l'Horloge" comes to Middlebury from the exhibition at the World's Fair in Chicago.

The exhibit is meant to supplement the films from the Metropolitan museum of art concerning the making of etchings, and is open to the public.

A Harvard philosophy professor was pointing his lecture-room barbs at an "intelligence test" prepared by a psychology department, in whch one of the questions read, "What would you do if you found yourself lost in the woods?" "You might" commented the professor, "sit down on a stump and chew your fingernails, but it probably would be smarter to look for the moss on the north side of the Ph.D. who wrote the examination."

Marble Block Holding Valued Fossils Is Presented to Geology Department

The Vermont Marble company has presented the college geology museum with a block of polished marble containing excellent fossil specimens of the Ordovician period.

The marble is of the Grand Isle variety and was quarried on a small island in Lake Champlain near Burlington. The slab contains a number of well preserved fossils of Orthocerus, a type of cephalopod characterized by a long, straight, tapering shell and containing many chambers. It is related to the chambered nautilus which is in existence today. These marine animals flourished during the Ordovician period and some of the world's best deposits are found in the Champlain valley which was a vast seaway at that time.

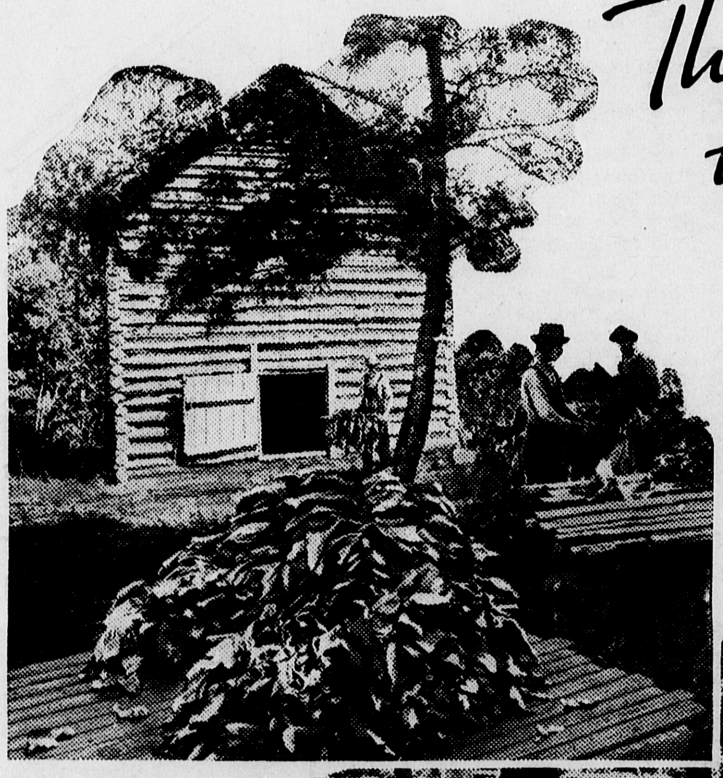
They ought to know—

MANY men of the South have been "in tobacco" for years—growing tobacco and curing it—buying it and selling it—until they know tobacco from A to Izzard.

Now folks who have been in tobacco all their lives, folks who grow it, know there is no substitute for mild ripe tobacco.

And down in the South where they grow tobacco and where they ought to know something about it—in most places Chesterfield is the largest-selling cigarette.



Harvesting tobacco and packing it in the barn for curing—and (below) a scene at a Southern tobacco auction.
